

Essentials of Toxicology for Health Protection

a handbook for field professionals

Price: £19.99

The first book to provide an introduction to toxicology as well as its practical application in acute and chronic chemical incident response

Aimed at health protection consultants, public health specialists, environmental health scientists, emergency services, workers in the water and waste industries and other industrial and regulatory bodies

Includes a basic introduction to toxicology:

- fundamentals of toxicology - a general introduction
- applications of toxicology - including exposure assessment and susceptible populations
- environmental toxicology - incorporating air, land and water contamination
- a review of some toxic agents - including the deliberate release of toxic agents

Also includes a section on basic medical concepts and a glossary to help readers without a background in medicine, biology or the health sciences

Written by experts in their fields, it includes useful case studies, UK legislation and practical guidance

Acts as a reference manual for all health protection field professionals
