Kimberly Clark - InteguSeal Microbial Sealant

Basic research and development, validation and recent in use evaluations have shown benefits that should be available to NHS bodies to include as appropriate in their cleaning, hygiene or infection control protocols. (recommendation 1)

This product is a barrier, intended to prevent intraoperative contamination of surgical incisions. Following skin disinfection, it is applied as a liquid and then seals the skin around the operative site, preventing wound contamination from the surrounding skin microflora whilst allowing normal transpiration of water vapour.
